Do you know the exact day, month, and year you'll be debt-free? The fact is, most people don't. But if you did, how would that affect your life? What would your debt-free life look like?

See, getting out of debt on your own is a lot like going on a road trip without GPS. You know your destination. But if you make a wrong turn, it's hard to see how it affects your ETA.

You want to get rid of your debt as soon as possible. But between your mortgage, car loans, and student loans, it's very difficult to tell when you'll reach your destination. And all the little purchases you make along the way can have a big impact on your 'travel time.'
